UNDERGRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTION

Term: Summer 2016
Instructor: Dr. L. William Oliverio, Jr.
Course #: THEO 1001
Section: 102 and 103 (These sections are for special summer programs)
Course Title: God and the Spiritual Life in the Contemporary World

Description:

The late modern, contemporary world is an era of pluralism. Traditions and conceptions about what is ultimately real and the meaning of life have come into increasing and constant contact, and new conceptions abound.

These sections of Introduction to Theology will focus on the Christian tradition, its sub-traditions, conceptions of God in the contemporary world, and the varied types of spirituality and practices that relate to Christianity in the late modern world.
