Tutoring Goals for 2014-2015

Below are the goals I have set for myself for this coming academic year, 2014-2015 as a Graduate Tutor in the Writing Center:

1. Write clear recommendations and write them as legibly as possible so that the writer can take something with her/him. I believe it is important for writers to take away revision ideas based on our conference together.

2. Balance leading questions with more objective questions so as to balance the collaborative task – i.e. leading questions for me as a tutor guiding; objective questions for the writer to get them thinking about his/her own writing.

3. Continue to greet writers enthusiastically and jovially to establish a good working rapport.

4. Vary my Writing Conference In-Take spiel so as to not ask the same questions and the same phrases every time (this goal mostly applies to repeat writers – I do not want them to think they are working with Cyborg JTL9-HZ-292).
